

The Semantics of "before" Revisited

Toshiyuki Ogihara (University of Washington)

This talk is a response to Beaver and Condoravdi's (2003) proposal about the semantics of "before". My proposal says that "before" essentially means 'not after' and that a purely extensional analysis of the construction that accounts for both veridical and non-veridical uses of "before" is possible and is more desirable.